Classic Automation, an international provider of parts, products and services for installed control systems, was number 72 in the 2011 Rochester Top 100 list of fastest growing private companies in the Rochester, New York area. The list ranks privately held firms by growth rate over the last 3 years.

“Our growth is driven by the increasing need of industrial companies to prolong the useful life of their control systems”, explains Fritz Ruebeck, company president. “We see strong demand for quality surplus parts on a high availability basis, especially parts for vintage control systems that are being phased out by the original manufacturer. “
